MANAGED-SERVICE MELTDOWN - THE LATEST

1. JSA has been calling for an accreditation scheme for bona fide accountancy service providers since the legislation was enacted. Although this seems a long way off, the good news is that HMRC is at least considering an audit scheme.

2. A major consequence of the Managed Services Legislation is that most recruitment agencies have abandoned their Preferred Suppliers List for fear of potentially being landed with unpaid or disputed tax debts of contractors. In a recent JSA survey among top recruiters, two thirds believed that the introduction of an accreditation scheme for accountancy service providers would enable them to establish or reinstate a PSL.

CHANGES AFOOT FOR RESOLVING TAX DISPUTES

The ordeal which Geoff and Diana Jones went through over their company Arctic Systems, might be avoided in the future if a new system for resolving tax disputes is introduced. The merger of Revenue and Customs has left the merged department with separate procedures for the resolution of tax disputes. HMRC is now holding a consultation to find ways of streamlining procedures.
